She WINS!

Building Character Through Sports

is a youth program to get girls involved in sports to develop their character, confidence and leadership ability. The girls will be introduced to sports and follow our curriculum to build life skills.

The program will launch in Orlando, FL in 2014 and will be expanded over time to other cities where our Fanatchicks audience reside – across the US and around the world.

FACT: Nearly 30% of elementary schools do not have regularly scheduled recess.

FACT: Girls enjoy the challenges of sport and gain confidence through being physically active.

"I played in a competitive soccer league as a young girl. I was a scrawny little kid but I was fast! I was a team leader and my family and I had the chance to travel to different cities for tournaments. I competed in many sports throughout my youth, finally specializing in track where I was able to earn an athletic scholarship which led me to earn two degrees. I developed an unwavering confidence growing up that has served me well in life. I want to give other girls that same opportunity through sports participation. Our cities need She Wins!"

FACT: While 1 in 3 girls are active through sports participation...one third of girls barely meet minimal physical activity standards, and the remaining third are completely sedentary.

FACT: All girls can and should be physically active because many healthful outcomes accrue when girls are physically active on a regular basis.

FACT: Girls enjoy the challenges of sport and gain confidence through being physically active.

FACT: Girls love physical activity experiences and through them develop important relationships.

FACT: A similar study indicates that female athletes are half as likely to become pregnant in high school.

FACT: Physical activity is not an "add-on," but rather is a core value and principle for healthy and effective living.
